Seeing Differently: Creating More Interesting Compositions

Topic

The Challenge in photography is to take a scene that is visible to anyone who cares to look at and present it in a uniquely artistic way. With every photograph I make, I attempt to rise to that challenge. It's all about seeing the world differently, where even the most mundane subject can be turned into works of art. In this seminar, join me as I explore the processes, I use to create some of my landscape, macro and natural abstract images using various compositional strategies and the amazing features of my camera gear.
